The bill was signed by Pennsylvania Governor Tom Wolf on Oct. 30, 2017, making Pennsylvania online gambling legal.

In order for online casinos to operate legally, gambling sites need to obtain a license. The first list of licenses was offered to the 12 existing land-based and racetrack casinos.

Even though Pennsylvania online casinos have only been available at land-based sites regionally, a handful of them have experience with the advanced technology or have operated online in other states where online gambling PA was legalized earlier.

By collaborating with global giants like FanDuel or 888, the casinos can expand their reach in the market in no time, because of the high-quality platforms.

In Pennsylvania, there are these 12 online casinos that have obtained licenses to operate and are legal.

Licenses are distributed by these bodies to ensure fairness, and protection of players, and to keep a track of the casino's operations. This means that a player can file a complaint to the regulatory body, which was established to protect players' rights.

The legalization of Pennsylvania online gambling started with PA House Bill 271, which was approved by the PA Senate (31-19) on October 25, 2017, and later by the PA House of Representatives (109-72) on October 26, 2017. Governor Tom Wolf signed the bill into law on October 30, 2017.

Pennsylvania's House and Senate projected a possible revenue of more than $200 million during this current financial year to be generated via Pennsylvania online casinos. The bulk of that revenue was expected to return from online poker and gambling. The understanding that the state's House and Senate operated under was that a limited number of licenses of $10 million would be assigned to interested operators, allowing online slot machines, poker, and table games to be made available to PA residents.

Aside from the $10 million license fee for all three gaming verticals, the state is predicted to supply six licenses allowing access to 2 verticals each for $4 million. There's also a $1 million fee for a platform provider license with sixteen expected to be distributed.

The exorbitant sums for the aforementioned licenses have likely contributed to why Pennsylvania online casino gaming has been slow to roll; it's somewhat cost-prohibitive.
